The most obvious aspect of the display is the 'retriever' animation. The use of the expanding menus for these options helps to ensure that the dialogue is relatively simple – complexity is only added when users request these options. However, it is questionable whether this actually makes a significant difference for large groups of users.