

These traits are determined by genes, which are specific sections of DNA that carry the information needed to produce proteins, the building blocks of life. These traits are determined by genes, which are specific sections of DNA that carry the information needed to produce proteins, the building blocks of life.