

Collaborative tools provided by computer technologies play a crucial role in enhancing the efficiency of group decision making within group decision support systems (GSS). Experience using these tools can be useful in understanding their impact and benefits in improving group decision making within GSS