What is visual pollution?o Organizing slums, providing adequate basic infrastructure, and paying particular attention to the cleanliness of these areasIt (in addition to its psychological visual effect) is extremely harmful to public health, because it leads to the accumulation of many animals, insects, parasites and microbes, which are not difficult to spread to multiple areas around the area in which they are located, and therefore this means the spread of many diseases such as measles, typhoid, skin allergies, cirrhosis, and kidney failure as a result of these insects transferring microbes from their centers to food, drink or even ingredients Food and drink from plants and agricultural crops.Visual pollution damage o Visual pollution negatively affects the psyche of people, even if they do not notice it, because the surroundings have a great impact on the psyche of a person, and therefore the prison sentence is to keep the individual in a dark room and the air may not enter it. If you live in an area where green spaces and crops abound, your daily dealings and way of thinking will inevitably differ from if you live in an area where your gaze falls daily on a lot of garbage, randomness, and filth.o One of the worst manifestations of visual pollution is also the unregulated slums, which exist in many developing countries, and cause many environmental, health, and aesthetic problems, as they distort the aesthetic appearance of cities and make architecture lose its value.o One of the manifestations of visual pollution, other than buildings and slums, is the elimination of aesthetic manifestations such as trees, gardens, and green plants that give an aesthetically pleasing and comfortable look to the soul when looking at them.o Visual pollution resulting from the accumulation of rubbish on top of each other in the streets, or its accumulation around rivers and seas, is not only visual pollution but rather comprehensive pollution.Man not only created slums here and there, but decided to eliminate everything beautiful as well by removing trees and eliminating green spaces to convert them into residential spaces as well.o Visual pollution is exposure to unpleasant visuals which cause stress and anxiety.o Reducing visual pollution is not an easy thing, as it is the responsibility of all of us, government and individuals, and in order to stop the problem of visual pollution, we must be aware of its damage to all of us. o Strict laws must be put in place to deter those who do not respect the right of others to live in clean, pollution-free places.o Reducing individual actions that may seem simple but are causes of visual pollution, such as throwing rubbish in the streets instead of throwing it in the rubbish bins.o Among the different pollution types, visual pollution represents a social problem that affects the physical and mental health of individuals who come into contact with it. Many do not know about this type of pollution and that is why it is becoming more frequent to have contact with it and its effects.Manifestations of visual pollution o Visual pollution is every appearance or ?form that is not pleasing to the soul.How do we reduce visual pollution
