

This standard requires that revenue be reported on the income statement in the period in which it is earned. Under the revenue realization or revenue recognition concept, a seller records potential revenue from a transaction, regardless of whether they have or have not received proceeds