

According to the results, a large percentage believe that online games pose significant risks to their users and players, and many of them stated that they experience headaches and heaviness after playing online games.