

The evaluation of their advantages and disadvantages is quite difficult, because each published study used different data sets and a different modeling approach (chemical descriptors, algorithms, etc).