

This year may be special because it witnesses the World Cup event in Qatar, which is held every four years. Most of my family will support the Arab national team, which is Saudi Arabia, except for my brother, who will support Argentina (because he loves Messi). But despite all that, what has impressed me most about the World Cup so far is Saudi Arabia's victory over Argentina, which is a source of pride for us. We, Arabs. My family and I have to watch the matches