

The economic health of a country has an impact on the travel and tourism industry. However, the strength of the economy will result in a strong currency and therefore, impact on the affordability of a destination for visitors