

finding that cranes were destroying his newly sown corn a farmer one evening set a net in his field to catch the destructive birds. when he went to examine the net next morning he found a number of cranes and also a stork. "Release me, I beseech you," cried the stork, "for I have eaten none of your corn, nor have I done you any harm."