

There was a young and beautiful prince who insulted an evil witch, and he was angry with him, turning it into a frog, and the evil witch made the prince a frog and placed it under His Majesty the King. In a well.

When the sun rose and the weather warmed, the king's young daughter wandered and threw a golden ball into the air and caught her again, so he saw the frog princess playing in the bright sun the golden ball, so the frog appreciated the beauty of the girl very much. Suddenly, when the princess was playing, the princess's ball hit the stone and fell into the hole, so the little princess looked at the hole and watched the golden ball sink into the small hole, and the little princess cried over the golden ball. The frog came out of the well and said, "Princess, I'll get you the golden ball, Princess. What will you give me in return?"

The frog said
