scenarios in which they would want the system to recognize people who are around but not necessarily interacting with (or looking at) them.