

Chapter 2: Autonomic Nervous System Changes The autonomic nervous system (ANS) is a critical component of the body's response to stress, relaxation, and overall physiological balance. It regulates many unconscious bodily functions, including heart rate, blood pressure, digestion, and respiration