

Authorities in Algeria were very satisfied after the end of the international book fair in Algiers, as Mr. Azzedine Mihoubi, the culture minister reported that the book fair was very satisfactory and everyone was overjoyed to attend it. The minister said that a survey was distributed to 1000 Algerian visitors of the book fair to gather their personal information and know more about their reading habits. Fite Algerian minister promised to encourage Algerian people to read more by organizing competitions for writers and readers, and he also told the visitors that he will do his best to open more public libraries in big and rural towns in Algeria.
