

Many managers have never had to shrink their operations or workforces drastically, and as a result they
.are making a common mistake