

I like working as a nurse. First, I have communication, empathy, and caring skills. Empathy helps build trust between me and the patient. My rewards as a nurse are that the patients are comfortable and that I am a positive resource for them. There are three important things about this job: the skills required, the setting I work in, and the rewards I get. My job requires me to be calm with the patient. Next, the setting must be comfortable and conducive to work. In short, achieving my dream job is my priority.
