

There have been significant changes in socializing due to technology (The Internet and social apps). Some people like socializing in-person while others prefer online depending on their preferences or circumstances. An in-person meeting allows you to see a person's reaction and expressions (such as happiness or sadness). Online meetings are good for people who are shy or like to communicate behind a screen. You can also hang out together. They are also good for family members who live far away.