

technology use and media consumption on infant, child, and adolescent development. NICHD has a longstanding commitment to research on how exposure to and use of technology and digital media affects development from infancy through adolescence. Research suggests that postpartum depression may be a risk factor for problematic