Different methods are used because business enterprises vary in their nature and in the type of products or services they produce or render.