

he thought that they can convince the servants that they were mistaken when they identified the boy so they can save him when the police came after that he sent to the servants and ask them if they could rally identify the boy in the darkness with all the gunfire and the servants admitted that they couldn't be absolutely certain