

It takes a lot of thermal energy for water's temperature to change. This is why the ocean isn't a "thousand degrees. It's also why it takes some time for a pot of water to begin to boil