

Therefore, government curricula in schools have taught children the importance of preserving the .environment so that it remains balanced and healthy