

Additive effect– when the total pharmacological action of two or more chemicals taken together is equivalent to the summation of their individual pharmacological action