

So, let's start with the first of the characteristics of culture—culture is learned. For example, we learn our religion formally through an institution such as a church, or mosque, or synagogue. We observe and imitate others, and communicate with others, absorbing and learning our culture in the process. It is also known as socialization.