There is no doubt that fires negatively affect the environment and cause damage and destruction, as they raise the percentage of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, cause pollution in the environment, thin the ozone layer, damage farms and places, in addition to losing the ability of soils to absorb water, damage agricultural land in some cases, and fires cause the destruction of many residential areas close to