

Specifically, the committee examines physical (including neurobiology), mental and behavioral health outcomes. The Committee also explored the various findings of the psychological and physical effects of bullying.