

Ice floats because it is less dense than the water. The fact that ice floats in water is a bit strange,
.because most substances are denser when they're solids