

The method's goal is to ensure optimal class separability by transforming characteristics from a high-dimensional space into a lower-dimensional space in which the proportion of between-class variation to within class variance is maximized [31,32]. Improved Linear Discriminant Analysis Linear discriminant analysis is a method for simplifying classification problems in supervised machine learning. 3.2