

Title: Pursuing Passion: My Dream Job and Motivation My dream job is to become a marine biologist, exploring the mysteries of the ocean and advocating for its protection. Despite the challenges that come with pursuing a career in marine biology, including rigorous academic training and competitive job prospects, my passion and determination remain steadfast. I am driven by the urgent need to address threats such as pollution, overfishing, and habitat destruction, which pose significant risks to marine ecosystems and biodiversity.