

Hey Noor, hope you're doing well! This should outline your goals, financial projections, marketing strategies, and how you plan to run things day-to-day. Personally, I recommend contacting the Economic Development Board (EDB) for more guidance. After that, you'll have to register your business with the Ministry of Industry, Commerce, and Tourism in Bahrain. Learn from my experiences, and you'll do great! Do some research to identify your target audience, competitors, and potential gaps in the market. Join local business groups and events to meet fellow entrepreneurs and potential clients. Collaboration with other creative minds can be a game-changer. Just stay persistent and flexible. It's awesome to hear that you're thinking about starting a creative business in Bahrain. First things first, you've got to figure out a creative business idea. Understanding the local market will be crucial for success. Next, you'll need to put together a solid business plan. A good business plan will be your roadmap. There are forms to fill out and fees to pay. In fact, it's a good idea to get some professional help for this part, too. Finally, always keep in mind the value of networking. In short, never forget that starting a business is a journey, and there may be challenges along the way. Wishing you the best of luck with your creative business in Bahrain! I'd love to share some tips to help you get going in the right direction. Take care, Wesam
