

The study involved 490 medical students, whose ages varied from 17 to 28 years old with a mean age of 22.7 ± 1.7 years. Table 4's analysis of the students' physical activity patterns shows that 291 (59.4%) never engage in physically demanding activities, whereas 51 (10.4%) do so four to seven days per week.