

Depends on the point of view ? Some computers have little or no user interface, such as embedded computers in devices and automobiles. Users of dedicated systems such as workstations have dedicated ? resources but frequently use shared resources from servers.