

Although the interviewer obviously serves many useful functions in this process, he or she can also be a source of bias. By the same token, the respondent may alter his or her