

Therefore, for a project to be deemed successful depends from whose perspective the subject of the model is viewed. When KPI are fully developed in this research, one can actually see their trend when compared with other similar projects as control variables. Also, according to AT, studies can be conducted at different level of abstraction, at different project stages