

A term coined to describe films made more for artistic reasons than commercial ones, often as a personal statement by the filmmaker