

Through a process known as carding opens up the wool fibre staple ready for further processing at the end of carding wool can be spun into slabbings for woollen spinning or formed into a sliver for worsted processing