

Madeline will likely navigate her desire for independence by gradually asserting herself and seeking ways to connect with Olly while still respecting her mother's concerns. How do you think this will impact her relationship with her mother?