

Aggressive behavior is often observed during adolescence. At the same time, is one of the most important mental health problems for adolescents associated with various behavioral and psychological disorders among young people