

In conclusion, tourism is a bridge between cultures and societies, and promotes international cooperation and world peace.