

Alone at home is a movie starring a young child named Kevin, where his family is lost because of their large number. In the end, he is considered a child with intelligence and intuitive speed in how to behave in his family's absence, and he has the art of dialogue with others, which surprised sellers and thieves with this skill that exceeds his age. The child continued to defend himself and his home in a comedic way until he got rid of the thieves and his family returned.