All Computer output devices are peripheral hardware and connected to a computer by cables, or by wireless connection.