

The employee has the right to receive a commission calculated as a percentage of the revenue generated from their efforts, according to what the company sets from time to time.