Protection: one of the primary functions of pharmaceutical packaging is to protect the drug product from external factors that can affect it's quality and potency packaging can protect the drug from physical damage moisture light air and other environmental factors