

Provide proper research foundation for effective manpower and organizational planning; The HR Division conducts research and analysis on labor market trends, workforce dynamics, and organizational needs. By providing data driven insights and recommendations, HR supports effective planning that enhances organizational efficiency and adaptability to changing conditions