

Powered by Google TranslateTranslate in july 1789 , an angry mob of starving peasants broke into a huge royal prison in the center of paris , called the Bastille (see source a) .the king, louis XVI , had little choice but to give up some of his powers and the country was run by a national Assembly (asort of parliament).