

In recent years, the topic of using the internet has risen and attracted a lot of media attention. Finally, they say that it makes people lazy and affects family interaction badly. The aim of this essay is to shed light on the two points given in details. Some people support it completely and find it positive while some other people refuse it from the start. On the one hand, it is strongly felt by many people that using the internet can have its bright side for several reasons: First, It saves a lot of time and effort. Added to that, Internet contact costs a lot of money. The same rule applies to this controversial issue. For example, eyestrain.