

Cities are energetic and diverse cultural centers all across the world. You'll find a ton of great options to choose from: restaurants, art galleries, museums, theaters, concert venues, clubs, festivals, parks, etc. Culture Cities are vibrant, thriving centers of culture that offer a wealth of opportunities to engage in and experience the local community. You'll find the classic, larger brand stores to smaller, artisan craft shops all within a relatively small radius. Chinese, Mexican, Ethiopian, Thai, and more – the local restaurant scene will generally reflect that diversity and offer something everyone will love! The simplest table centerpiece can often be the perfect Spring architecture to get you inspired To commemorate #NationalFairHousingMonth, we're Shop small. Trains, buses, and subways are all efficient and cost-effective methods of getting to and from your home and other destinations. You'll typically find craft breweries and food trucks paired together for a cheap, delicious meal with your favorite local beer. How would you add Spring: the best time to start organizing Fin Whether you're a plant mom or pet mom, you need a Backyard dreams Looking to create the ultimate Entryway inspo Need some ideas for your home d The best markets to move to this year are.... There's certainly no shortage of activities that can match your personal interests or hobbies and allow you to enjoy your time living in the city, just make sure you find a community that's suitable to your lifestyle! You can also explore ride-share programs like Bird and Lime scooters – just be sure to sanitize before and after use! TOMMY SIBIGA See more posts by this author Tweet Share 34 Share Pin 2 36SHARES Related Posts: No related posts. A group of young friends waiting relaxed and carefree at the station in Porto, Portugal before catching a train. Clothing options can be found at stores like Target or perhaps a small thrift store specializing in handmade, bespoke fashion. Opportunities/Careers Finally, an excellent perk of living in the city is the sheer amount of education, career, and volunteer opportunities available. Whether you're trying to earn a bachelor's degree, graduate degree, seeking full-time employment in your field, or just looking for somewhere to lend a helping hand in your free time – city life presents a chance to learn, grow, develop, and serve in whatever manner you wish. We're blushing over this pink wall Looking fo Tag a friend you'd like to vacation with here Need some spring decor inspo? Living in the city may not be for everyone, but there are certainly some universal observations and benefits of doing so. What makes city living so exciting and convenient? The costs are relatively low for these services and the amount of money you may save from not having car-related expenditures will make city living more affordable. If public transit isn't your cup of tea, most cities offer bike options. Dining Group of friends having fun on the rooftop of a beautiful penthouse Dining options in the city are both plentiful and diverse. Of course there will always be the chains you know and love, but cities are diverse places. You have everything within easy access via public transportation, a short drive, or even walking distance. If you find yourself in this situation, check out our comprehensive article on creating a working environment in any small space! You can get your groceries at your favorite big box store or shop small at a neighborhood market offering locally grown produce and other goods. Whether you're looking for a coffee shop, a delicatessen, or the best fish tacos in town – city dining has it all. Hopefully, these few benefits help you in your decision-making process of deciding where to live. If you're interested in moving to a city, check out our step-by-step guides on buying, selling, and renting. SHARE WITH FRIENDS TAGS advantagescitylivingmoving SEARCH Search... Travel photography.