

Although many people say that beauty isn't important, I believe the opposite is true in our current world.