

Advertising is present in our daily lives and introduces new products and services, such as clothing and food.