

In a harmful tree recycling project, the target market for psychological retail can be identified by understanding the psychological needs and desires of potential customers.